PTAX-323 General Information

What is the Homestead Improvement Exemption?

The homestead improvement exemption is an exemption allowed for new improvements to existing structures on homestead property or the rebuilding of residential structures following a catastrophic event. The exemption is limited to a maximum of $75,000 per year in fair cash value and continues for four years from the date the improvement or rebuilding is completed and occupied, not the date you file this application.

Note: You may have more than one homestead improvement exemption on the same property. However, you cannot receive a homestead improvement exemption for any other property in Illinois for the same assessment year and the total exemption cannot be more than $75,000 per year.

What is homestead property?

PTAX-323 Back (R-10/04)

Homestead property includes any residential property occupied as the principal dwelling place (single-family residence, duplex, condominium, and townhome) by the owner and any appurtenant structures on the property used solely for residential purposes.

What types of improvements qualify for the homestead improvement exemption?

An improvement qualifies if it increases the assessed valuation of homestead property and either

- increases the square footage of any existing structure assessed as real property, such as new room additions and attached garages, balconies, decks, patios, and porches; or
- adds any permanent appurtenant structure used solely for residential purposes, such as detached garages, gazebos, and storage sheds, and in-ground swimming pools; or
- materially alters the existing character and condition of any existing structure, such as installing central air conditioning, replacing asbestos siding with wood clapboards, upgrading asphalt shingles with slate or tiles, and converting unfinished space into finished living area.

Any repair work performed to prolong or maintain the condition of an existing improvement does not qualify for this exemption.

What if my property is damaged or destroyed as a result of a catastrophic event?

If your property is damaged or destroyed as a result of a catastrophic event, you may qualify for a homestead improvement exemption if the residential structure is rebuilt within two years of the catastrophic event.

A catastrophic event includes the occurrence of widespread or severe damage or loss of property resulting from any catastrophic cause, including fire, arson (provided the fire was not caused by the willful action of an owner or resident of the property), flood, earthquake, wind, storm, explosion, or extended periods of severe inclement weather. However, a residential structure affected by flooding is not eligible for the homestead improvement exemption unless it is located within a local jurisdiction that is participating in the National Flood Insurance Program.

The homestead improvement exemption applies only to the increase in value of the rebuilt structure over the value of the structure before the catastrophic event.

When should I file?

You may file for a homestead improvement exemption once the improvement or rebuilding is completed and occupied. File this Form PTAX-323 with the local assessing official at the address shown below.

Note: You may be required to provide additional documentation to verify the information on this application.

What if I need additional assistance?
